When a bill, drawn on a Jew in Hamburg, comes on a Saturday, or holiday of the Jews, he is not to be molested on that day; yet, if the bill is payable after sight, he is to date his acceptance on the day on which the bill came to hand. When the prima (or first) of a bill is accepted without being indorsed, and the second, or third, comes with an indorsement, the possessor of such a bill is to present to the acceptor, on the day of payment, the accepted first bill, and also the indorsed second, or third; and all these must, after payment, be delivered to the person who pays the bill. If the indorsement should contain only the word order, and the name be left blank, such an indorsement must not be cancelled, but the holder is to fill up the blank with his own or another s name; and when a bill, duly indorsed, is presented for payment, no other indorsement can, after that, be put to it; neither can a bill, drawn to order, when it has yet a little time to run, be negotiated to the prejudice of the acceptor. The holder of a bill is at liberty, after its written term is expired, to have it protested when he thinks proper, within the 12 days of...
