Excerpt: . . . percent in the first 10 months of 1998 versus the same period in 1997. Overall, import penetration grew from 24. 2 percent in the first 10 months of 1997 to 29. 5 percent during the same period of 1998. Steel imports from Japan, Russia, and Korea together accounted for 78 percent of the increase. At the same time, U. S. steel production for 1998 was at near record levels, and steel demand in the United States during 1998 was the strongest in history. Preliminary U. S. Department of Commerce figures for December 1998 indicate a decrease of 1. 1 million metric tons in steel imports entering the United States. The November-to-December change in steel imports, based on metric tonnage, reflects decreases primarily in hot- rolled sheets, plates in coil, and blooms, billets and slabs. The source of the decrease is primarily Russia, Japan, and Korea. In response to the increase in steel imports, segments of the U. S. industry have sought relief under U. S. trade laws. Most recently, U. S. steel...
